

Ability to define a 'default' dashboard

I have a workbook that contains multiple dashboards which contain a set of information I want to be accessed as a 'collective'. When I publish the workbook to the server, anyone accessing one of the dashboards sees all the other dashboards as tabs which is the desired behaviour.

Currently all the individual dashboard worksheets are listed separately on the server itself via the <server>/workbooks/<report name> page or <server>/views page.

However, I ideally only want one of the dashboard worksheets to be listed on the server as the main 'entry point' for a user, but still retain the behaviour of a user seeing the other tabs when they access the report. Being able to define a 'default' dashboard/worksheet to display would be very useful to remove clutter and streamline the amount of information a user ends up seeing on the portal.
