Distribute Objects Evenly Within a Container

It would be very nice to have a tool that allowed you to distribute dashboard objects evenly within a container.

The example below depicts 4 tree charts used to convey information and serve as filters. They are in a vertical container. But, there is no simple way to distribute them evenly. You have to eyeball it and hope that adjusting one does not totally "frak" up another. You can find yourself wasting too much time with minor adjustments like this, but its the fine details that help make the difference.
